Tifton 44

New grass cited

Tifton 44 is a new variety of bermuda grass developed in Georgia. It is similar to Midland, but has better disease resistance, higher quality, excellent winter hardiness and slightly higher yields. It is expected to replace Midland as the recommended variety for this area of Virginia.

A small planting was made of Tifton 44 at the Virginia Crop Improvement Farm two years ago. Sprigs from this planting will be dug in mid-May. There is a limit of 5 bushels per grower and cost is $3 per bushel.

Normally, the recommended planting is 15-20 bushels of sprigs per acre when planted in rows.

If you are interested, we need to get your order placed early.

Tobacco growers need to stay alert for it's a critical stage of plant bed management. Many plants are the size of a dime and larger. They need to be treated with a fungicide to prevent the development of blue mold.

* * *

Plants under plastic are even more important to watch. A survey last year showed that 33 percent of the flue tobacco beds were grown under perforated plastic. Inadequate ventilation is often a serious problem in plant beds covered with plastic.

A rule of thumb some growers use is: Remove the plastic cover if the outside temperature reaches 85° F. for two consecutive days. If the temperature is projected to drop below 45°F., put the covers back on the beds.

Sunflowers, in recent years, have been the fastest growing crop in the U.S., primarily for their high oil content.

Sunflowers make an excellent wildlife habitat; because of their very early maturity, they can be planted in a wide range of harvest dates. Seed planted in mid-May will mature about the first of August. Determine what specie of bird you wish to attract and arrange for the seed to mature about three weeks before the hunting season. Doves are especially fond of them. The seed provide high energy feed with a 40-50% oil content.

Some work was done with planting dates in Fluvanna County last year. They had a late planting (August 1) and it matured a full crop of seed just in time for the regular hunting season.

Dual has finally been cleared for use on silage corn. Bicep, which is a combination of Atrazine and dual, is also cleared for silage corn.

Some old things are popping up again. Drilled soybeans appear to be on the way back. This return to solid seeded or drilled soybeans may be the most rapid changing practice in soybean production in America today. Advantages: (1) Increased yield (2) Easier weed control (3) Easier insect control (4) Simplification of harvest (5) Energy savings.

Corn farmers get break from Bergland

Corn farmers who did not participate in the 1979 feed grain program will be allowed to place a limited quantity of, corn in the farmer-owned grain reserve, according to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

Bergland, who took the action following the April 11 signing of authorizing legislation by President Carter, said he did so to help farmers isolate additional corn stocks from the marketplace and strengthen market prices.

Bergland said this option for previously ineligible corn farmers will be available on a first-come, first served basis until approximately 295 million bushels (7.5 million metric tons) of previously ineligible corn have been placed in the reserve, or May 15, whichever comes first. This offer may be terminated at any time, Bergland said.

Bergland said farmers who did participate in the 1979 feed grain program and who currently have corn under a regular 9-month price support loan will continue to be eligible to enter their grain into the reserve, regardless of how many bushels of previously ineligible corn go into the reserve.

Farmers who wish to take advantage of this change should contact their local county office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Program non-participants will receive the same reserve loan rate for their corn ($2.10 per bushel) as do program participants, but will not be eligible for the waiver of first-year interest charges. Non-participants will remain ineligible for USDA's regular 9-month price support loans, Bergland said.

USDA has been purchasing corn to help support prices, following the January 4 announcement by the President to suspend grain shipments to the Soviet Union in excess of 8 million metric tons per year. Since that announcement, the department has purchased approximately 59 million bushels (1.5 million tons) of corn and accepted into the farmer-owned grain reserve 197 million bushels (5.0 million tons) of corn. The total quantity of corn now in the reserve is approximately 812 million bushels (20.6 million tons).

FARM CREDIT SERVICE
Over the years, American farmers have demanded quality and value in the equipment they buy. They have always picked the best.
The companies that have endured this selection process are proud of their products and their service. They have provided the best.
Farmers have used the same standard when shopping for financing. And, over the years, more American farmers have come to borrow through their cooperative Farm Credit Associations than from any other lending institution.
But, like America's great equipment companies, we know that we have to continue to provide the best if we want to endure. So we have rededicated ourselves to that proposition.
If you want to know more about how your Federal Land Bank and Production Credit Associations can serve farmers, call your nearby Farm Credit Office. Pick the best.
